For Music Aficionados -

Palmerston is a five-piece acoustic band that delivers an exceptional blend of original songs penned by Alan Rondeau, beautifully infused with harmonies and instrumentation that spans from the Banjo to Viola. Their music transcends genres and finds a home in any festival, captivating audiences with their unique sound and lyrical prowess.

In recent years, Palmerston's reputation has skyrocketed, and the band has had the privilege of sharing stages with notable names like Ralph McTell, The Moulettes, Eve Selis, and country guitar legend, Albert Lee. Lee himself had nothing but praise for the band, saying, "The gentlemen of Palmerston guarantee you an exciting evening of music. Their sound is fresh, invigorating, all their own, and a must-see-and-hear."

As they continue to tour and perform at festivals and theatres around the country, Palmerston has also recorded four albums and two EPs, showcasing their hard work and dedication to their craft. They've even recorded a DVD capturing their "Birmingham Town Hall" appearance while on tour with Albert Lee.

Their latest album, "If it Don't Hurt," is available on all major streaming music sources or directly from the band themselves. For those seeking a unique and captivating musical experience, Palmerston is an absolute must-see.

Palmerston comprises of Alan Rondeau, Martin Hartup, Dave Norman, Julian Pentz and Andy Powell
